RE: PRE-ABORIGINAL CIVILISATIONS IN AUST?

Dear Sir, A question that has always intrigued me is - Is there any evidence of any other civilisations in Australia apart from the Aborigines?

Naturally I don't mean since the advent of European occupation and I know that the aborigines have been here 40,000 years plus, but is there any history of other culture?

Archaeological evidence tells us of vast empires in Asia and S.E. Asia dating back thousands of years and the Indian holy books suggest some of these civilisations were very scientifically advanced (even with aircraft).

Mythology talks of Atlantis and Lemuria and of course many references to UFOs.

With all these things going on, surely our ancestors knew of the existence of Australia, but apart from the aborigines did anyone else ever settle here?

Does aboriginal mythology mention other cultures?

Has evidence been found and suppressed?

If no other cultures ever lived here, then why not?

I know that the usual argument is that the aboriginals came via the S.E. Asian land-bridge, possibly from India, and then when the bridge disappeared they were cut off and isolated.

But if mythology is correct and vast civilised and advanced peoples did live millennia ago, why did they never settle in Australia?

Perhaps one of your good readers knows some answers and would like to comment on the above.

Keep up the good work.

Ian Lyons. Merimbula NSW.

(Dear Ian, Loved your questions. The only concrete lead I can suggest is what is known as the "Bradshaw Paintings", found in the Kimberleys. According to aboriginals, these paintings were made by people before the aboriginals arrived in the area.)

RE: ALTERNATIVE LIBRARIES

Dear Duncan and "Nexus" Crew, Wow! What else can I say? I'm blown away! Please find enclosed a cheque to cover a 2 year subscription (starting from Vol.2, #7, #6 was my introduction to the real world!) and another $75 to cover the cost of every back issue you have.

After going through #6, I feel so "enlightened". I'd never realised just how much we are kept in the dark on issues that I feel are very important, and it's good to see that some information is at least getting out.

Many of the books that I see listed within the pages of Nexus are titles that are simply not held by any of our regional (government run) libraries, and with the country's current financial state I simply can't afford to purchase as many as I'd like to.

Do you know of any alternative libraries anywhere? Maybe a good idea would be to get one started so that more folks could gain access to all of this information with less "hip pocket pain".

Anyway, that's more food for thought. I'm looking forward to lots of winter reading.

Rae. Trice, Lilydale. Victoria.

Dear Rae, Thanks for such an enthusiastic letter. Unfortunately I do not know of any such library, but I can suggest you try the Sydney Esoteric Bookshop, who also sell these type of books secondhand. Ed)

RE: FLUORIDE ALLERGY

Dear Duncan, It's time I shared some data about fluoridation which I haven't seen in the literature.

I first became interested in the subject when my wife reacted violently to fluoride toothpaste. Within a few days of starting to use it, her throat, mouth and tongue were covered with painful white lumps. Her doctor said, "I'm not supposed to tell you this, but fluoride is a deadly poison, don't use it!"

This was many years ago. I immediately started looking for data about fluoridation and it's history. I eventually found out about Oscar Ewing and the ALCOA farce, but one other story was most interesting.

The assertion was made that fluoridation as mass medication was invented by Nazis and first used by the Communist dictator of Rumania, one Anna Pauker, to tranquilize the citizens of two towns who were in revolt.

I found this statement barely credible, so in order to check it, wrote to the secretary of the Public Health Dept. in W.A. and asked how many tranquilizers currently approved for sale in W.A. had sodium fluoride as an active ingredient. The reply was that there were five such tranquilizers. Very interesting!

Perhaps this is why so many Australians are apathetic about defending their personal freedom. They are drugged by their daily dose of poison.

Keep up the good work.

RE: OFFENDING ABORIGINALS

Dear Mr. Roads, I have just finished reading Rex Gilroy's article "Ancient Chinese in Australia," in which Gilroy asks if it was Columbus or the Chinese who discovered America, and whether it was Cook, the Dutch or the Chinese who discovered Australia.

May I ask, Mr. Roads, who discovered Europe? Who discovered Asia? Of course you can't answer, for humans have lived on these continents for so many years. But the same goes for America and Australia, where humans have lived for around 50,000 years. By claiming that these continents were "discovered" in recent times by Asians or Europeans, Gilroy suggests that no humans were living on these continents.

White Australians tried in the past to exterminate the Aborigines, but failed; in Germany the Nazis felt that some races were sub-human and planned to rid the world of them. I just wonder how you can justify publishing this tacit depiction of Indians and Aborigines as non-humans. I think you should apologise publicly for this unthinking racism.

Sincerely, Don Eldridge, West End Qld.

(Point taken, and I apologise to any one who was offended)

RE: BRUCE CATHIE - STAN DEYO CONFERENCE

Dear Editor, First allow me to congratulate you on a fine and very informative magazine. I have to date purchased only four, but I am about to amend that. Please see enclosed strip.

Aside from start a subscription, my reason for writing this letter is to express regret that I could not attend the Cathie/Deyo Conference. How come they never came to Melbourne? Is there the possibility that they will?

If not, do you possibly have tapes of the talks given by both authors? I would gladly purchase these, as I'm a fan of both men and have all their books. Between them I think a few doors will be sorely shaken, if not opened.

Should the tapes not be available, will Nexus be publishing the texts of the above-mentioned gentlemen?

In closing allow me to express alarm on the article addressed "Subliminal Seduction." I thought our politicians had tried to or had banned it. It looks more insidious than it seems.

Once again thank you for a wonderful magazine. Please consider me part of the family.

Yours faithfully, Karel M., Vic.
